

Walkthrough

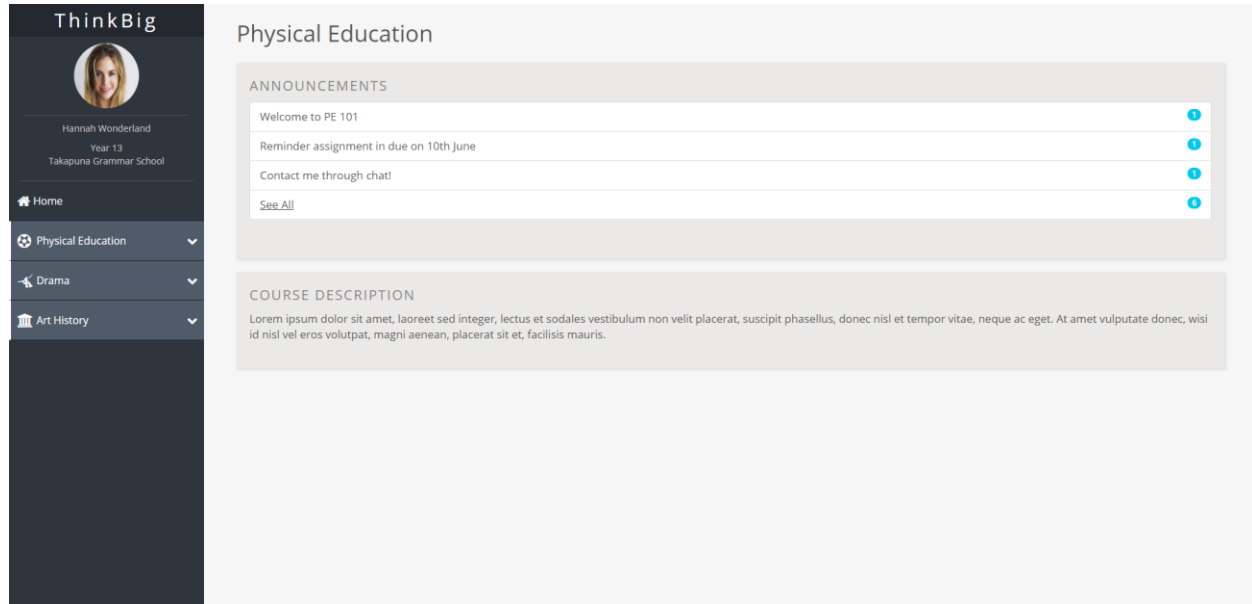

First screenshot shows the main page of the website. To the left of the website is a side panel, which consists of website's logo, logged in user's detail and a collapsible list style menu. Clicking on 'Physical Education' navigate the user to 'Physical Education' page. The menu uses collapsible menu in order to hide unnecessary information and to reduce clutter.

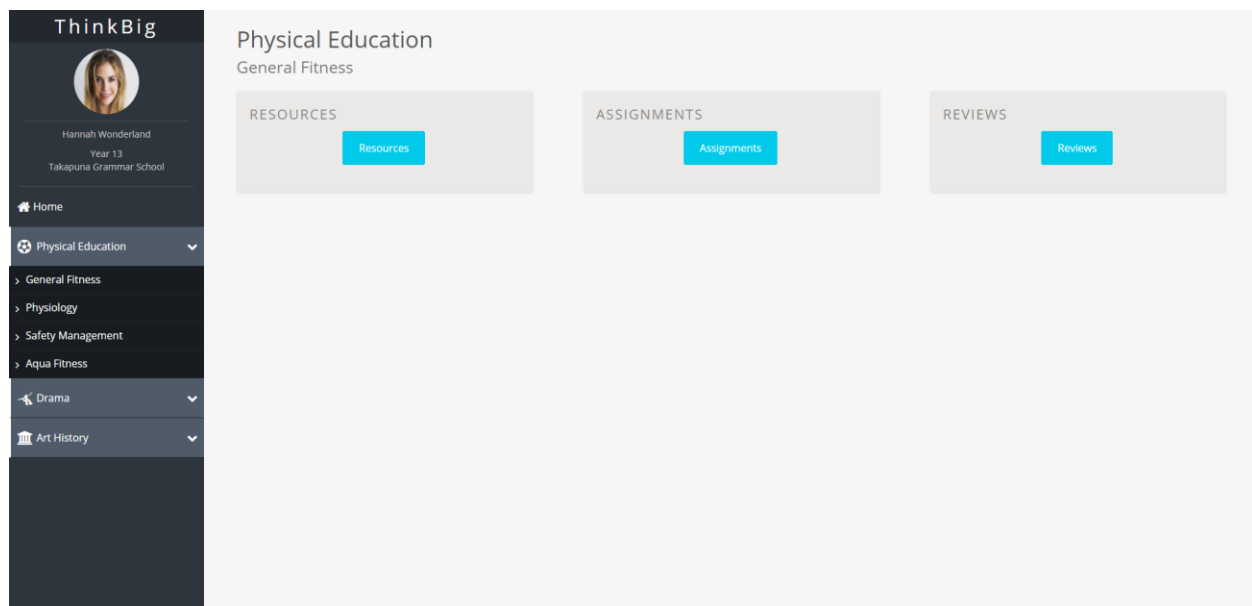

The actual login and the details shown on this panel has been hardcoded since it was out of scope of the project.

items in the announcements panel changes background colour on hover, indicating it can be interacted. However, for the scope of this project, the actual link has not been implemented. Also the information shown on this section is mock data.

After clicking on 'Physical Education', the user will be redirected to subject's main page. The edit functionality has not been implemented as this is a prototype for student users.

Clicking on 'Physical Education' arrow will reveal submenu items. Clicking on 'General Education' will redirect to General Education page which will then have three buttons 'Resources', 'Assignments' and 'Reviews'.

The assignment page consists of questions panel and answer panel. I have used JavaScript to count words. After writing their answer, user can either save the answer as draft and finish it later or submit the answer now. The buttons will also be replaced by "Resubmit" button. The actual saving and submit and word limit functionality has not been implemented.

From the 'General Fitness' page, clicking on 'Reviews' button will redirect the user to a student's answer page. Each peer answers are in collapsible panel which shows one answer at a time and changes colour on hover to indicate they can be clicked. The review text area has word limit and buttons that perform same functionality as the assignment page. As in the assignments page, the actual save draft, submit and word limit functionality has not been implemented. Also the page which allows user to create question has not been implemented.
